Gameplay Mechanics

Game Structure

The game consists of multiple levels, each presenting a different question or challenge. Players must answer these questions correctly to progress, but incorrect answers often lead to amusing consequences, such as losing lives or encountering comical animations. The game also incorporates a timer, adding an element of urgency to each question.

Life System

Players start with a limited number of lives, which can be lost through incorrect answers. This life system encourages careful consideration of each response, as players must balance the desire to answer quickly with the need to answer correctly. Once all lives are lost, players must restart from the beginning, which can be frustrating but also motivates them to learn from previous mistakes.
